HAPPY Fathez's Day To All Our Awesome Dad's!

DIVERSITY

ARTICLE BY: SCOTT FROEMMING, CEO

This word has a lot of different connotations in today's world. For some it is a desired state where all groups and subgroups of our society are equally represented in all our businesses and institutions. It is equated with inclusiveness - nobody is left out. Then we have diversity of ideas, opinions or principles, which can be rooted in political affiliations, religions, ethnicity or the limitless creativity of the human mind. Diversity when done properly whether related to people groups or thought groups is a work of art. It is like a skillfully sown quilt made of many different colorful patches which form beautiful patterns and more importantly function as one unit to form a warm and inviting covering.

Unfortunately, today diversity is in many instances driving us apart. Some people feel threatened by differences in appearance, ethnicity, ideas, etc.; others feel threatened because they feel diversity is being forced upon them and the scales are being tipped too far the other way. In either case, they feel like they are being disrespected, devalued, censored, effectively excluded from the quilt.

Two of the principles on which our great country was founded are that all men (and women) are created equal and the freedom of speech. The underlying thought here is no matter how diverse our appearance or background, we all have equal value and no matter how diverse our ideas, we have the right to express them without fear of retribution. These foundational principles embrace diversity and have played a huge role in making the United States the greatest country in the world. Diversity does not have to be divisive!

In the energy world, at lot of the diversity discussions center around what's the best source of energy. Should our electricity come from coal, wind, solar, gas or some combination of all of them. A couple of months ago I wrote about how I thought energy mandates were counterproductive. I received a thoughtful letter from a member who disagreed with my position. After reading his letter, I have a better understanding of why some would propose mandates. He didn't change my mind, but I respect his opinion and his right to express it.

The answers to complex problems usually lie somewhere in between the extreme positions. I believe the solutions lie in a diversity of ideas and perspectives while applying our founding principles of free speech and equality to the conversations. Let's make sure no one is excluded from the table and then let's have a quilting bee. Let's take the best ideas from each group and sew them together into a skillfully crafted beautiful energy policy quilt that will keep our children and grandchildren warm and comfortable for many years to come!

24-HOUR OUTAGE NUMBER

When your lights go out, so do we.

Call us if your power goes out even if you think your neighbors already did. Leave one light on so you know when power has been restored and make sure you have an emergency kit ready.

STAY BACK AND STAY SAFE

Working with electricity can be a dangerous job, especially for lineworkers. In fact, USA Today lists line repairers and installers among the most dangerous jobs in the U.S. That's why for Kandiyohi Power Cooperative, safety is the number one priority. This is not empty talk. Over time, we have created a culture of putting our crews' safety and that of the community above all else.

Our mission is to provide safe, reliable and affordable energy to you, our consumer-members. Yes, we strive to deliver affordable and reliable electricity to you, but equally important, we want our employees to return home safely to their loved ones. This requires ongoing focus, dedication, vigilance – and your help!

Distractions can be deadly

While we appreciate your kindness and interest in the work of our crews, we ask that you stay back and let them focus on their task at hand. Even routine work has the potential to be dangerous, and it takes their full attention and that of their colleagues, who are also responsible for the team's safety. Distractions can have deadly consequences. If a lineworker is on or near your property during a power outage, for vegetation management or for routine maintenance, please allow them ample room to work. These small accommodations help protect our crews— and you.

If you have a dog, try to keep it indoors while lineworkers are on or near your property. While most dogs are friendly, some are defensive of their territory and can't distinguish between a burglar and a utility worker. Our crews work best without a pet "supervising" the job.

We recognize that for your family's safety, you want to make sure only authorized workers are on or near your property. You will recognize Kandiyohi Power Cooperative employees by their service trucks with our name and logo on them. You may also recognize our lineworkers because they live right here in our local community.

Slow down and move over

In addition to giving lineworkers some space while they are near your property, we also ask that you move over or slow down when approaching a utility vehicle on the side of the road. This is an extra barrier of safety to help those who help all of us.
